FED THEM ON PICKLED INDIAN

At one time a Mono county merchant supplied his customers with a dish not known to other parts of the world—corned Indian.

Of course the merchant, who was a Chink, didn't advertise the fact that he was handing them out salted and salt-petered Indian, but they absorbed the delicacy with much gusto and paid the price, says Editor Nugent.

The inspiration was furnished the Oriental by a poker game. The native visited the hop joint, burdened with a jag, and more money than discretion. John Chinaman and Poor Lo engaged in the great American game of poker and before sunrise the simoleons belonged to the heathen and the redskin possessed only a bad head and added experience.

Finally, through the befuddled wits of the Indian came the knowledge that he had been jobbed, and with it a desire for revenge. Having no firearms, he grabbed a big iron poker and proceeded to start a hurdle over tables and chairs and with the queue bearer about two hurdles ahead. But the gap shortened, the pursuer was nearing the pursued, the fire-stirring implement had jolted the ribs of the Chink and something had to be done or there would be a strange face in Chinese hell, without advance notice.

Above the door of the emporium hung a sword, the former property of an Imperial ancestor. This the child of a mandarin laid hold of and like a warrior of old, smote has antagonist, slit his windpipe and made a good Indian.

In the economy of the Oriental there is no such thing as waste. Preparing a brine the celestial made a soured or pickled meat that sold like hot cakes to all the gour-mands and epicures of the town. But the store run out of meat, the Indian tribe was short a member, the county officials got busy and Chink was landed in jail. When the hearing came up a band of Indians appeared on the scene, carried the Chinese to the open country, hacked him to pieces and feasted on Oriental hash for a week.

TO MAKE FISH CLASSIFICATION.

Fish Commissioner Mills has received some pleasing news regarding fish culture and classification. For many years attempts have been made to secure the assistance of the government to help in the classification and investigation of the native fish of the waters in the lakes and rivers in this state.

The trouble has always been that the investigators always ask that Nevada assist in the expense account, and as the fund was always short the way could not be found to spare the expense.

Mr. Mills has been in correspondence with the officials at the heads of the departments and has recently been informed that Prof. J. A. Snyder will be placed in charge of an expedition and will make the investigation and classification that has been asked.

The work will be taken up as soon as possible, and be thoroughly handled, as only such an authority can.

Mr. Mills is asking that when the expedition reaches Nevada that every assistance possible be shown the members. They wish to make a thorough classification and this can only be brought about by the assistance of the people who know the water conditions and roads throughout the state. The expedition will probably visit every section in the state where fish are known to exist.

STATE ASKED TO LIQUIDATE OLD CLAIM

The legislature will, during this week, receive a petition from L. G. Conture asking that he be reimbursed to the extent of the money he expended out of his own pocket when he represented Nevada at the Paris exposition.

Conture, who is one of the oldest and most respected of the Comstockers, had charge of the mineral exhibit at the fair and he incurred bills for the exhibit which he was compelled to pay out of his own pocket, there being no money available at that time, and the understanding was given that the state should make up the amount. A bill was introduced many years ago, but during the excitement of the session it was shoved to one side and nothing more was ever done in the matter.

The Storey delegation will father the bill, and it is expected that Conture will, at last, receive the money that he has waited so patiently for ever since the exposition of twenty years ago.
